THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

- |                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Regretting       | that many Member States of this assembly, such as the Netherlands, Spain, New Zealand, and South Africa, aim to promote the inclusion of so-called LGBTQI+ communities by granting them access to educational settings, only to subsequently allow them to disseminate convictions that are not of a natural order,                                                                                                                                            |
| Deeply concerned | about the influence of ideologies that contradict the fundamental principles of our cultures, disregarding individuals' right to form their own thoughts, as well as the potential issues our societies might face, such as the increase in youth suicides,                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Emphasizing      | that the LGBTQI+ community is deeply committed to promoting its convictions by intruding and imposing its ideas in an intrusive manner, even though they are contrary to our cultures, religions, and the general well- being of our institutions,                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Commending       | Hungary, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Iraq, and many other countries rich in strong values and convictions, as well as all nations that proudly defend their cultural heritages and deepest principles, refusing to succumb to the current irrational trend,                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Decides          | to establish an international assessment system aimed at testing the neutrality of individuals supporting LGBTQI+ lobbies to ensure that their work as education officials is completely impartial,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|                  | <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- to prohibit the development of courses related to sexual orientation and gender identity in the field of education to align with Article 17 of the International Convention on the Rights of the Child, in order to protect children from harmful information,</li><li>- to prohibit pro-LGBTQI+ audiovisual propaganda in the sphere of education, in order to create an environment conducive to learning.</li></ul> |
